Synopsis

When Sir Charles Baskerville is found suspiciously dead, his friend, Dr. James Mortimer asks Sherlock Holmes to look into the death. While the cause of death is determined to be a heart attack, Mortimer suspects foul play and fears that Sir Charles's nephew and sole heir, Sir Henry Baskerville, may be in danger next. At the center of the investigation is the curse of the Baskervilles, which dates back to the time of the English Civil War. Supposedly the family's ancestor, Hugo Baskerville, sold his soul to the devil, and the family has been haunted by a large spectral hound ever since. Because Sir Charles was found with a look of horror on his face when he died, appeared to be running away from something, and large paw prints had been found near his body, there is reason to believe that the "Hound" may have returned. The details of the case spark the interest of Sherlock and he agrees to take up the case. "The Hound Of The Baskervilles," is widely regarded as one of Doyle's best. (Courtesy of the publisher)

Author Biography Arthur Conan Doyle

Sir Arthur Ignatius Conan Doyle, a British writer and physician, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland. He created the character Sherlock Holmes in 1887 for A Study in Scarlet, the first of four novels and fifty-six short stories about Holmes and Dr. Watson. The Sherlock Holmes stories are milestones in the field of crime fiction. Doyle was a prolific writer; other than the Holmes stories, his works include fantasy and science fiction stories about Professor Challenger and humorous stories about the Napoleonic soldier Brigadier Gerard, as well as plays, romances, poetry, non-fiction, and historical novels. He also had many other interests including sports and architecture.

Doyle passed away in 1930 at the age of 71. (Adapted from Wikipedia)

A. What Do You Know About Hounds?

As you might have guessed from the title of this novel, a "hound-like" dog plays an important part in the book's plot. But what do you know about hounds? Did you know, for instance, that there are over a hundred different hounds, ranging in size from the great Irish wolfhound to the very small dachshund. Using resources in your school library or on the Internet, research three fascinating facts about the hound of your choice and record this information below.

Ту	pe of Hound:

hun inti i	Personification is giving human qualities to something that is not man. In Chapter One the author writes, But the manuscript is short and is mately connected with the affair. Why is the above statement an example of this literary device?
b) (Create your own example of personification.
c) \	Why do you think this literary device continues to be popular with writers?

C. Anagrams

An anagram is a word that is formed by changing the order of the letters of another word. For example, the letters in the word PAN can also form the word NAP. Follow these directions to form the anagrams:

- a) read the clue in the right-hand column.
- b) Using the word in the left-hand column move the letters around in any order, but you must use all the letters.

Each of the words in the left-hand column are found in this section of our novel.

Word	Anagram	Clue
point		A piebald horse.
traces		Responds in a particular way.
several		Departs a place or position.
article		Performance
horses		Beaches.
worse		Scatterer.

D. A simile is a comparison using the words "like" or "as". We find an example of this in Chapter One: The was a very tall, thin man, with a long nose like a beak.

In this example what two things are being compared?

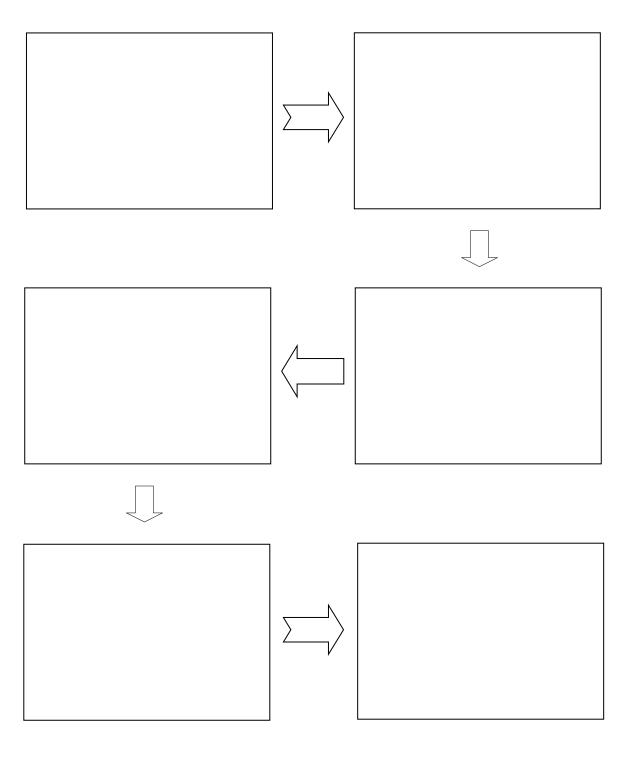

Invent your own similes comparing the following items with something from your imagination:

a) The sound of a vicious dog.

b) your own example

E. Sequence Chart

Choose what you consider to be the \underline{six} most important events in these chapters. In each of the six boxes below list the six events that you have chosen, describing what happened and telling why you consider this to be an essential part of the story.

Storyboard

A storyboard is a series of pictures that tell about an important event in a story. A storyboard can tell the story of only one scene – or the entire novel.

Complete the storyboard below illustrating the events described in the first two chapters of our novel. You may wish to practice your drawings on a separate piece of paper.
